A must-own for any collectorBy AmidanshiJoe Phillips' newest book contains some of the most stunning, inspiring artistic depictions of carefree and fun-loving young men anywhere. Phillips is perhaps best known for his work for Xodus Magazine and Jocko Underwear, but the glossy, full-color air-brushed drawings in this book are pure art. The only criticism for this book is that several of the images have been published previously in calendar form (hence the 4 stars instead of 5). Simultaneously both homoerotic and tasteful, this beautifully bound volume is essential to any serious collector of homoerotica or cartoons/comics.

Joe Phillips, a successful Californian illustrator, known and honoured as a result of many publications recently celebrated a great success worldwide with his erotic comic-strip "The House of Morecock". This illustrated book shows a selection of his best drawings painted in gaudy colours. Be they luscious boys in a fountain, pillow fights among soldiers or romantic dates in a park, Joe Phillips explores male fantasies and often plays with a mixture of youthful charm and racy masculinity.
