Robert G. Christie : Cracked Mirror before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Cracked Mirror:

Ross Rivera, a 20-something loser who hates to be called a loser, wakes up one morning to find that his own reflection in the mirror is a different personality than himself... frighteningly different. Once taunted by the image, he loses temper, throws an object at the mirror, creating a spiderweb-like crack, that soon triggers the nightmare that ensues. Mysteriously, one by one, co-workers in his office turn up dead. But is Ross responsible? Or is it his reflection? And who is next victim? Will it be Ross himself? Or the lady he's in love with? The cliff-hanger ending reveals more than Ross wants to know.
