It has space to write the date and plenty of space to write the assignment. With my younger students, I encourage them to "color in" the music note on the pages to correspond with the days they practice that week, then we total them up at the lesson. For the older kids, they fill in the number of minutes they practice each day. I have used more expensive, spiral-bound assignment books, and found that they are excessive. Too much paper, too much wasted space. These are just perfect, in both size and price. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Practice Record Keeping makes great students By GE Company I love these little books and use them with every one of my students. It's important to keep track of their practice time but also to keep track of what you've assigned them to work on each week. In addition, I use gold stars for every week they practice over a certain number of minutes. After four stars, they earn a prize. These little books keep the students organized and help them form good habits. And they're a great price, too! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. I really like the staff at the bottom of each page By Randi Robinson I really like the staff at the bottom of each page. I can personalize a small exercise at each lesson to address a specific concept the student is trying to learn. Wish it were twice the size though.

(Educational Piano Library). Includes 32 weeks of lesson assignments and a music dictionary.
