praised NEW ADVENTURES OF SHERLOCK HOLMES, VOL.16:TERRIFYING CATS SUBMARINE CAVES:

Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce play the title roles in two original radio dramas, as they journey to Rome to exonerate an American opera singer of murder and find themselves battling sinister forces threatening Britain's existence.

From AudioFile This series, originally produced for Mutual Radio in the 1940's, is complete with commercial sponsors. The two stories, "The Terrifying Cats" and "The Submarine Caves," both half-hour broadcasts, give a wonderful glimpse back to American life before television. Disturbing racial stereotypes, which were prevalent when these tapes were broadcast, are a sobering experience today. The plots are almost secondary to the experience of reliving radio classics which were the unchallenged focus of entertainment for an entire country. A wide range of patrons from young adults to older readers will enjoy every tape of this series. M.V. (c)AudioFile, Portland, Maine
